

▶ Get Outdoors II, LLC v. City of San Diego, Cal. C.A.9 (Cal.),2007.

United States Court of Appeals,Ninth Circuit.
GET OUTDOORS II, LLC, A Nevada Limited
 Liability Company, dba Get Outdoors, LLC,
 California, Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

CITY OF SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA,
 Defendants-Appellees.
No. 05-56366.

Argued and Submitted June 6, 2007.
 Filed Nov. 1, 2007.

Background: Outdoor advertising company sued city, challenging constitutionality of ordinance restricting billboards. The United States District Court for the Southern District of California, William Q. Hayes, J., 381 F.Supp.2d 1250, entered summary judgment for city. Company appealed.

Holdings: The Court of Appeals, Hall, Senior Circuit Judge, held that:

- (1) company could have standing to challenge only those portions of ordinance that applied to it;
- (2) alleged injury to free speech rights would be redressed by favorable decision, as required for standing;
- (3) size and height restrictions were valid, content-neutral, time, place and manner restrictions on speech; and
- (4) company lacked standing to bring prior restraint challenge to ban on off-site billboards.

Affirmed.

West Headnotes

[\[1\] Federal Courts 170B](#) 🔑776

170B Federal Courts
170BVIII Courts of Appeals
170BVIII\(K\) Scope, Standards, and Extent
170BVIII\(K\)1 In General
170Bk776 k. Trial De Novo. Most Cited Cases

Court of Appeals would review district court's dismissal for lack of standing, dismissal for mootness, and grant of summary judgment de novo. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 56\(c\), 28 U.S.C.A.

[\[2\] Federal Courts 170B](#) 🔑759.1

170B Federal Courts
170BVIII Courts of Appeals
170BVIII\(K\) Scope, Standards, and Extent
170BVIII\(K\)1 In General
170Bk759 Theory and Grounds of Decision of Lower Court
170Bk759.1 k. In General. Most Cited Cases

The Court of Appeals may affirm a district court decision on any ground supported by the record.

[\[3\] Federal Civil Procedure 170A](#) 🔑103.2

170A Federal Civil Procedure
170AII Parties
170AII\(A\) In General
170Ak103.1 Standing
170Ak103.2 k. In General; Injury or Interest. Most Cited Cases

Federal Civil Procedure 170A 🔑103.3

170A Federal Civil Procedure
170AII Parties
170AII\(A\) In General
170Ak103.1 Standing
170Ak103.3 k. Causation; Redressability. Most Cited Cases
 The irreducible minimum of standing under Article 3 is: (1) an injury in fact which is actual, concrete, and particularized; (2) a causal connection between that injury and the defendant's conduct; and (3) a likelihood that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision of the court. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 3, § 1 et seq.

[\[4\] Federal Civil Procedure 170A](#) 🔑103.2

170A Federal Civil Procedure
170AII Parties

170AII\(A\) In General170Ak103.1 Standing

170Ak103.2 k. In General; Injury or Interest. Most Cited Cases

The doctrine of prudential standing, which supplements the requirement of Article 3 constitutional standing, requires the Court of Appeals to ask whether the plaintiff's claim is sufficiently individualized to ensure effective judicial review. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 3, § 1 et seq.

[5] Constitutional Law 92  2503(1)92 Constitutional Law92XX Separation of Powers92XX\(C\) Judicial Powers and Functions92XX\(C\)2 Encroachment on Legislature

92k2499 Particular Issues and Applications

92k2503 Civil Remedies and Procedure

92k2503\(1\) k. In General. Most Cited Cases

The Court of Appeals employs the prudential standing doctrine to avoid usurping the legislature's role as the policymaking body in the separation of powers.

[6] Constitutional Law 92  85592 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions

92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing

92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press

92k855 k. In General. Most Cited Cases
When a plaintiff states an overbreadth claim under the First Amendment, the Court of Appeals suspends the prudential standing doctrine because of the special nature of the risk to expressive rights. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[7] Constitutional Law 92  85592 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions

92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing

92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression,

and Press

92k855 k. In General. Most Cited Cases
While the prudential standing doctrine typically prevents the Court of Appeals from hearing lawsuits on the basis of injuries to non-parties, the overbreadth doctrine operates as a narrow exception permitting the lawsuit to proceed on the basis of a judicial prediction or assumption that the statute's very existence may cause others not before the court to refrain from constitutionally protected speech or expression; in other words, a plaintiff challenging a law as overbroad argues that the law is constitutionally valid as applied to him, but unconstitutional as to others. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[8] Constitutional Law 92  85592 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions

92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing

92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press

92k855 k. In General. Most Cited Cases
In determining standing as to an overbreadth claim alleging free speech violations, the Court of Appeals asks whether the plaintiff has suffered an injury in fact and can satisfactorily frame the issues on behalf of the non-parties who allegedly refrain from engaging in protected speech because of the statute. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[9] Constitutional Law 92  85592 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions

92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing

92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press

92k855 k. In General. Most Cited Cases
The three Lujan elements, namely an injury in fact, a causal connection, and a likelihood of redressability, apply in the context of an overbreadth challenge alleging that parties not before the court are caused to refrain from engaging in speech by the statute in question. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[10] Constitutional Law 92  855

92 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press92k855 k. In General. Most Cited Cases

Outdoor advertising company, in challenging city's ban on off-site billboards on basis of alleged harm to free speech rights of other potential speakers, specifically noncommercial speakers, was required to meet Lujan requirements, namely injury in fact, causal connection, and likelihood of redressability, for each provision it wished to challenge as overbroad. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[11\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  85592 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press92k855 k. In General. Most Cited CasesConstitutional Law 92  87492 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press92k873 Licenses92k874 k. In General. Most CitedCases

Assuming that it fulfilled redressability requirement, outdoor advertising company, in alleging that city subjected it to content-based ban in violation of its free speech rights, did not have standing to challenge entire sign ordinance, but instead had standing to challenge only those portions of ordinance that applied to it, namely ban on off-site signs, which city specifically cited as reason for denying permits, and size and height restrictions, which city indicated would provide independent basis for denial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[12\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  87492 Constitutional Law92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise Constitutional Questions; Standing92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press92k873 Licenses92k874 k. In General. Most CitedCases

Alleged content-based ban on outdoor advertising company's speech would be redressed by favorable decision, as required for standing, in that Court of Appeals could invalidate both ban on off-site signs, which city specifically cited as reason for denying permits, and size and height restrictions, which city indicated would provide independent basis for denial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[13\]](#) Federal Civil Procedure 170A  103.2170A Federal Civil Procedure170AII Parties170AII\(A\) In General170Ak103.1 Standing170Ak103.2 k. In General; Injury orInterest. Most Cited Cases

Because standing is addressed on a claim by claim basis, an unfavorable decision on the merits of one claim may well defeat standing on another claim if it defeats the plaintiff's ability to seek redress.

[\[14\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  167792 Constitutional Law92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and Press92XVIII\(E\) Advertising and Signs92XVIII\(E\)5 Billboards92k1677 k. Size or Height Restrictions.Most Cited Cases

Size and height restrictions on billboards are evaluated as content-neutral time, place, and manner regulations on speech. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[15\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  167592 Constitutional Law92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and

Press

92XVIII\(E\) Advertising and Signs

92XVIII\(E\)5 Billboards

92k1675 k. In General. Most Cited

Cases

A challenge to a restriction on billboards based on the effect on commercial speech is evaluated under the test of Central Hudson Gas & Elec. Corp. v. Public Serv. Comm'n of New York, which is less stringent than the noncommercial speech standard, and which requires that laws affecting commercial speech seek to implement a substantial governmental interest, directly advance that interest, and reach no further than necessary to accomplish the given objective. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[16\]](#) Constitutional Law 92 1514

92 Constitutional Law

92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and

Press

92XVIII\(A\) In General

92XVIII\(A\)1 In General

92k1511 Content-Neutral Regulations

or Restrictions

92k1514 k. Narrow Tailoring

Requirement; Relationship to Governmental Interest.

Most Cited Cases

Constitutional Law 92 1515

92 Constitutional Law

92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and

Press

92XVIII\(A\) In General

92XVIII\(A\)1 In General

92k1511 Content-Neutral Regulations

or Restrictions

92k1515 k. Existence of Other

Channels of Expression. Most Cited Cases

A content-neutral time, place, and manner restriction on speech must be narrowly tailored to serve a significant government interest, and must leave open ample alternative channels of communication. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[17\]](#) Constitutional Law 92 1514

92 Constitutional Law

92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and

Press

92XVIII\(A\) In General

92XVIII\(A\)1 In General

92k1511 Content-Neutral Regulations

or Restrictions

92k1514 k. Narrow Tailoring

Requirement; Relationship to Governmental Interest.

Most Cited Cases

Regulations placing a content-neutral time, place, and manner restriction on speech must not be substantially broader than necessary to protect a city's interests. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[18\]](#) Constitutional Law 92 1677

92 Constitutional Law

92XVIII Freedom of Speech, Expression, and

Press

92XVIII\(E\) Advertising and Signs

92XVIII\(E\)5 Billboards

92k1677 k. Size or Height Restrictions.

Most Cited Cases

Municipal Corporations 268 602

268 Municipal Corporations

268X Police Power and Regulations

268X\(A\) Delegation, Extent, and Exercise of Power

268k602 k. Billboards, Signs, and Other

Structures or Devices for Advertising Purposes. Most Cited Cases

City's size and height restrictions on billboards, which varied with respect to square footage from 32 for narrowest rights-of-way with lowest speed limits to 300 for freeway-oriented signs, were valid, content-neutral, time, place and manner restrictions on speech, where city's stated purpose was to optimize communication while protecting aesthetic character of city, city calibrated restrictions to width of adjacent public rights-of-way and speed limit, and restrictions did not ban billboards and thus left alternative channels of communication open. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[19\]](#) Constitutional Law 92 874

92 Constitutional Law

92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions

92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise

Constitutional Questions; Standing
92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression,
and Press

92k873 Licenses
92k874 k. In General. Most Cited

Cases

A person subject to a licensing ordinance may make a facial, First Amendment attack on that ordinance without ever applying for a permit because the threat of the prior restraint on speech itself constitutes an actual injury. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[20\]](#) Federal Civil Procedure 170A  103.2

170A Federal Civil Procedure
170AII Parties
170AII\(A\) In General
170Ak103.1 Standing
170Ak103.2 k. In General; Injury or Interest. Most Cited Cases

Federal Civil Procedure 170A  103.3

170A Federal Civil Procedure
170AII Parties
170AII\(A\) In General
170Ak103.1 Standing
170Ak103.3 k. Causation;
Redressability. Most Cited Cases

No claim is exempt from Article 3 standing requirements of injury in fact, causation, and redressability. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 3, § 1 et seq.

[\[21\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  874

92 Constitutional Law
92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions
92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise
Constitutional Questions; Standing
92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression,
and Press

92k873 Licenses
92k874 k. In General. Most Cited

Cases

A party who is subject to a licensing statute allegedly vesting unbridled discretion in a government official over whether to permit or deny expressive activity may challenge the statute without subjecting itself to the application process; in other words, one who might have had a license for the asking may challenge the licensing scheme as a prior restraint. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

[\[22\]](#) Constitutional Law 92  874

92 Constitutional Law
92VI Enforcement of Constitutional Provisions
92VI\(A\) Persons Entitled to Raise
Constitutional Questions; Standing
92VI\(A\)9 Freedom of Speech, Expression,
and Press

92k873 Licenses
92k874 k. In General. Most Cited

Cases

Outdoor advertising company lacked standing to bring prior restraint challenge to city's ban on off-site billboards, where company's applications to erect billboard structures had been denied due to constitutionally valid size and height restrictions, and city had not indicated intent to file permit applications complying with such restrictions, and company thus was not plaintiff who "might have had a license for the asking." U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.

*889E. Adam Webb, The Webb Law Group, Atlanta, GA, for the appellant.
Randal R. Morrison, Sabine and Morrison, San Diego, CA, for the appellee.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, William Q. Hayes, District Judge, Presiding. D.C. No. CV-03-01436-WQH.

Before: CYNTHIA HOLCOMB HALL and CONSUELO M. CALLAHAN, Circuit Judges, and LYLE E. STROM,<sup>FN*</sup> Senior District Judge.

<sup>FN*</sup> The Honorable Lyle E. Strom, Senior United States District Judge for the District of Nebraska, sitting by designation.

HALL, Senior Circuit Judge:
This appeal is the first of three unrelated but similar cases requiring us to decide whether and to what extent an outdoor advertising company has standing to challenge the constitutionality of a municipal sign ordinance. In this opinion, we will outline the general legal principles applicable to all three cases and decide the appeal in the challenge to the San Diego ordinance.<sup>FN1</sup> We affirm the district court's order granting summary judgment to the City of San Diego.

FN1. We decide the other two cases in separately published memorandum dispositions. See Get Outdoors II, LLC v. City of Lemon Grove, 253 Fed.Appx. 636, 2007 WL 3230395 (9th Cir.2007); Get Outdoors v. City of Chula Vista, --- Fed.Appx. ---, 2007 WL 3230393 (9th Cir.2007).

I. Background

Get Outdoors II is an outdoor advertising company attempting to build and operate signs in the City of San Diego ("the City"). On June 2, 2003, Get Outdoors II filed twenty-four applications for billboard permits with the City, through its Development Services Department. Get Outdoors II alleges that it had already signed leases with various real property owners to post signs on their parcels.

When the company's representative dropped off the applications, a city official informed him that the City's sign ordinance prohibited new billboards but agreed to review the applications. The City then performed a complete review of the applications and notified Get Outdoors II the next day that it could not grant permits for any of the signs under San Diego Municipal Code ("SDMC") § 142.1210, which prohibits new signs bearing "off-premises" messages.<sup>FN2</sup> The City sent a formal letter, dated June 9, to the same effect.<sup>FN3</sup> In a later declaration, a city development official explained that, in *890 addition to violating the billboard ban, each of the permit applications was missing key documents and that, in any case, the proposed billboards violated size and height restrictions. Each of the proposed billboards had a display square footage of 672 and a pole height of 50 feet in areas where display was limited to 50, 150 or 350 square feet and pole height limited to 20 or 30 feet.

FN2. The "off-premises" or "off-site" distinction is a familiar one in sign regulation. The City in this case has restricted its sign permits to "on-premises" messages, which are defined as "those identifying or advertising an establishment, person, activity, goods, products, or services located on the premises where the sign is installed." SDMC § 142.1210(a)(1)(A). "Off-premises" or "off-site" signs, by contrast, advertise products or services that are sold or provided elsewhere. See generally Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S.Ct. 2882, 69 L.Ed.2d 800 (1981).

The City exempts non-conforming signs that were lawfully erected before July 19, 1983. See SDMC § 127.0303.

FN3. The declarations offered by the City and Get Outdoors II differ as to the dates—some say the relevant events occurred on June 2 and 3, others on June 5 and 6. Both parties agree that the City contacted Get Outdoors II the day after the permits were submitted and sent the formal letter on June 9.

Get Outdoors II filed this lawsuit on July 21, 2003. Its 33-page, 105-paragraph second amended complaint raises fourteen claims for relief based on the First and Fourteenth Amendments. It argues that the City's billboard regulations are unconstitutionally overbroad under the First and Fourteenth Amendments because they favor commercial over non-commercial speech and some types of noncommercial speech over others, and that its own rights were violated by the ban on off-site signs, as well as certain size and height restrictions. It also argued that the permitting process was an invalid prior restraint because it lacked a deadline provision and because it gave city officials unbridled discretion to grant or deny permits. Get Outdoors II requested injunctive relief, damages, and attorney fees. Notably, it requested that the court invalidate the entire sign ordinance.

The parties filed cross-motions for summary judgment, which were argued in November 2004. By that time, the City had enacted several legislative amendments, including a "message substitution" clause, a 45-day deadline for decisions on all permit applications, and a judicial review provision. See SDMC §§ 142.1210(a)(10)(D); 129.0808; 129.0809. The district court granted summary judgment to the City on July 13, 2005. See Get Outdoors II v. City of San Diego, 381 F.Supp.2d 1250 (S.D.Cal.2005).

A. Lujan and Overbreadth Standing

The district court held that Get Outdoors II lacked standing to bring its overbreadth claim because it was challenging provisions of the ordinance other than the provision that applied to it, found the billboard ban constitutional, rejected the challenge to the permit procedure as moot, and rejected the unbridled discretion claim on the merits. The court also held that the challenged provisions were severable because the content-neutral size and height restrictions may function independently from the provisions regulating sign copy and location. It granted summary judgment to the City.

[1][2] Get Outdoors II filed its timely appeal on August 17, 2005. We review the district court's dismissal for lack of standing, dismissal for mootness, and grant of summary judgment de novo. See Ruiz v. City of Santa Maria, 160 F.3d 543, 548 (9th Cir.1998); Desert Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of Moreno Valley, 103 F.3d 814, 818 (9th Cir.1996). We may affirm on any ground supported by the record. Lambert v. Blodgett, 393 F.3d 943, 965 (9th Cir.2004). We hold that the City's billboard size and height restrictions do not violate the First Amendment, that Get Outdoors II's permit applications violated these restrictions, and that it therefore lacks standing to challenge the ban on off-premises messages. Because we also hold that the challenge to the permit process fails, we affirm.

II. Standing

We turn first to the question of whether Get Outdoors II has standing to challenge the entire sign ordinance on the basis of the injuries it has alleged here. Because Get Outdoors II has made what it calls an overbreadth claim, it argues that it falls into a special exceptional category of standing doctrine. Throughout its briefs, Get Outdoors II uses "overbreadth" to describe*891 two different arguments: (1) a severability argument that an injury caused by one provision of the sign ordinance should be considered an injury caused by the entire sign ordinance; and (2) a traditional overbreadth claim that certain provisions of the sign code are unconstitutionally overbroad because they threaten to burden the speech of non-parties to this case. The discussion that follows addresses both of these arguments.

[3][4][5] The "irreducible minimum" of standing under Article III of the Constitution is 1) an injury in fact which is "actual, concrete, and particularized"; 2) a causal connection between that injury and the defendant's conduct; and 3) a likelihood that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision of the court. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61, 112 S.Ct. 2130, 119 L.Ed.2d 351 (1992). The federal courts have supplemented this requirement of "constitutional standing" with the doctrine of "prudential standing," which requires us to ask whether the plaintiff's claim is sufficiently individualized to ensure effective judicial review. See Elk Grove Unified School Dist. v. Newdow, 542 U.S. 1, 11, 124 S.Ct. 2301, 159 L.Ed.2d 98 (2004); Sec'y of State v. Joseph H. Munson Co., 467 U.S. 947, 956, 104 S.Ct. 2839, 81 L.Ed.2d 786 (1984); Schlesinger v. Reservists Committee to Stop the War, 418 U.S. 208, 94 S.Ct. 2925, 41 L.Ed.2d 706 (1974). We employ the prudential standing doctrine to avoid usurping the legislature's role as the policymaking body in our separation of powers. See Prime Media v. City of Brentwood, 485 F.3d 343, 353 (6th Cir.2007) (hereinafter "Prime Media II").

[6][7] When a plaintiff states an overbreadth claim under the First Amendment, however, we suspend the prudential standing doctrine because of the special nature of the risk to expressive rights. See Broadrick v. Oklahoma, 413 U.S. 601, 612, 93 S.Ct. 2908, 37 L.Ed.2d 830 (1973); Dombrowski v. Pfister, 380 U.S. 479, 486, 85 S.Ct. 1116, 14 L.Ed.2d 22 (1965). While the prudential standing doctrine typically prevents us from hearing lawsuits on the basis of injuries to non-parties, the over-breadth doctrine operates as a narrow exception permitting the lawsuit to proceed on the basis of "a judicial prediction or assumption that the statute's very existence may cause others not before the court to refrain from constitutionally protected speech or expression." Broadrick, 413 U.S. at 612, 93 S.Ct. 2908. In other words, a plaintiff challenging a law as overbroad argues that the law is constitutionally valid as applied to him, but unconstitutional as to others. See, e.g., Virginia v. Am. Booksellers Ass'n, Inc., 484 U.S. 383, 108 S.Ct. 636, 98 L.Ed.2d 782 (1988); New York v. Ferber, 458 U.S. 747, 102 S.Ct. 3348, 73 L.Ed.2d 1113 (1982).

[8][9] Even when raising an overbreadth claim, however, we ask whether the plaintiff has suffered an injury in fact and can satisfactorily frame the issues on behalf of these non-parties. See Munson, 467 U.S. at 958, 104 S.Ct. 2839; Gospel Missions of Am. v. City of Los Angeles, 328 F.3d 548, 554 (9th Cir.2003). Without this bare minimum of standing, the overbreadth exception would nullify the notion of standing generally in First Amendment litigation. We therefore agree with a string of recent decisions in other circuits holding that the three Lujan elements still apply in the overbreadth context. See CAMP Legal Defense Fund, Inc. v. City of Atlanta, 451 F.3d 1257, 1269-72 (11th Cir.2006); accord Prime Media II, 485 F.3d at 349-50; KH Outdoor, L.L.C. v. Clay County, 482 F.3d 1299, 1305 (11th Cir.2007); *892 Advantage Media, L.L.C. v. City of Eden Prairie, 456 F.3d 793, 799 (8th Cir.2006); see generally Valley Forge Christian College v. Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, Inc., 454 U.S. 464, 472, 102 S.Ct. 752, 70 L.Ed.2d 700 (1982).

[10] In this case, Get Outdoors II challenges the off-site ban, as well as the rest of the sign code, on the basis of the harm it causes to other potential speakers, specifically noncommercial speakers. Get Outdoors II must still show, however, that it meets the Lujan requirements for each of the provisions it wishes to challenge as overbroad.

B. Get Outdoors II's Standing

Having established that Get Outdoors II must meet all three Lujan requirements for any claim it wishes to make, we turn to deciding where and to what extent Get Outdoors II has standing. The injuries alleged in this case are as follows: (1) the denial of the permits; (2) being subjected to an unconstitutional content-based ban, and (3) being subjected to an unconstitutional prior restraint. Therefore, we must determine which provisions caused these injuries and whether these injuries are redressable by a favorable decision from this court.

[11] The permits were denied explicitly under the City's ban on off-site signs. This was the provision cited in person, in the informal telephone call, and the formal letter. The City has also demonstrated in its affidavits that it would have independently denied the permits under its size and height restrictions. Because we have found causation where the plaintiff has shown a provision would certainly be used against it, see Klein v. San Diego County, 463 F.3d 1029, 1033 & n. 3 (9th Cir.2006), we hold for our purposes here that the size and height restrictions constitute a secondary cause of the denial of the permits. Cf. North Avenue Novelties, Inc. v. City of Chicago, 88 F.3d 441, 443-44 (7th Cir.1996) (reading complaint broadly to incorporate a challenge to provision that did not directly cause, but otherwise would have caused, the plaintiff's permits to be denied). Get Outdoors II would have us take an even broader view of its case, however. It argues that its injuries should be attributed to the entire sign code and that it has standing, accordingly, to challenge these other provisions.<sup>FN4</sup>

FN4. We need not reach the question of severability of the provisions contained in the City's sign ordinance because it is clear that only the specific provisions discussed here injured Get Outdoors II. Severability would become relevant, however, were Get Outdoors II to prevail on its claims for injunctive relief, and we were to decide how much, if any, of the sign code to invalidate.

Get Outdoors II has standing to challenge only those provisions that applied to it. In 4805 Convoy v. City of San Diego, 183 F.3d 1108 (9th Cir.1999), for example, the City revoked a nude dancing license from the plaintiff, who proceeded to challenge the procedures for granting, as well as revoking, the licenses. We held that the plaintiff had standing to challenge only the revocation procedures. Id. at 1111. Get Outdoors II cannot leverage its injuries under certain, specific provisions to state an injury under the sign ordinance generally. See also Covenant Media of South Carolina, LLC v. City of North Charleston, 493 F.3d 421, 429 (4th Cir.2007) (holding that billboard company's standing to challenge the permit procedure "does not provide it with a passport to explore the constitutionality of every provision of the Sign Regulation").

[12] Having determined the nature of the alleged injuries and their specific *893 causes, we now ask whether these injuries are redressable. The blueprint for the district court's holding on this issue was Harp Advertising Illinois, Inc. v. Village of Chicago Ridge, 9 F.3d 1290 (7th Cir.1993), where a billboard company had challenged the village's off-site ban after seeking permits for signs that violated size and height rules. As the Seventh Circuit explained, in dismissing for lack of standing, “[a]n injunction against the portions of the sign and zoning codes that [Harp] has challenged [i.e., the off-site sign ban] would not let it erect the proposed sign; the village could block the sign simply by enforcing another, valid ordinance [i.e., the size and height restrictions] already on the books.” Id. at 1292. The court reiterated that redressability is part of the notion that any concrete harm occurred. Id.

The Seventh Circuit has since limited Harp in a case where the court determined that the plaintiff was implicitly challenging these secondary restrictions as well. See North Avenue, 88 F.3d at 443-44. Similarly, Get Outdoors II urges us to find that its claims are redressable because it has also explicitly challenged the size and height restrictions. For this reason, its appeal here is unlike Harp, and unlike two otherwise similar cases in other circuits where the billboard company lacked standing due to a violation of a provision not challenged in the case at bar. See KH Outdoor, 482 F.3d at 1303-04; Advantage Media, 456 F.3d at 801.

[13] We find that Get Outdoors II's injuries under the substantive provisions of the City's sign regulations would be redressed by a decision from this court that invalidated both the size and height restrictions as well as the off-site ban. We note, however, that because standing is addressed on a claim by claim basis, an unfavorable decision on the merits of one claim may well defeat standing on another claim if it defeats the plaintiff's ability to seek redress. Cf. Prime Media, Inc. v. City of Brentwood, 398 F.3d 814, 821 (6th Cir.2005) (hereinafter “Prime Media I”) (denying one claim on the merits and remanding to the district court to make a new determination of standing on the other claims).

III. The Size and Height Restrictions

[14][15][16][17] Size and height restrictions on billboards are evaluated as content-neutral time, place and manner regulations.<sup>FN5</sup> See County of Riverside, 337 F.3d at 1114-15 (9th Cir.2003); Prime Media I, 398 F.3d at 818. A content-neutral time, place, and manner restriction must be narrowly tailored to serve a significant government interest, and must leave open ample alternative channels of communication.

Flint v. Dennison, 488 F.3d 816, 830 (9th Cir.2007). Specifically, the regulations must not be “substantially broader than necessary to protect the city's interests”. See Members of the City Council of Los Angeles v. Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. 789, 808, 104 S.Ct. 2118, 80 L.Ed.2d 772

FN5. We construe the challenge to the size and height restrictions as an argument based on the effect on noncommercial speech because Get Outdoors II used the noncommercial speech standard in structuring its complaint. A challenge based on the effect on commercial speech would be evaluated under the less stringent test taken from Central Hudson Gas & Elec. Corp. v. Public Serv. Comm'n of New York, 447 U.S. 557, 564, 100 S.Ct. 2343, 65 L.Ed.2d 341 (1980) (requiring that laws affecting commercial speech seek to implement a substantial governmental interest, directly advance that interest, and reach no further than necessary to accomplish the given objective.)

[18] The Supreme Court has recognized that a city's interests in traffic safety and aesthetics are sufficient government interests for the purposes of this analysis. *894 See Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 453 U.S. 490, 507-08, 101 S.Ct. 2882, 69 L.Ed.2d 800 (1981). The City has stated that the purpose of its sign code is “to optimize communication and quality of signs while protecting the public and the aesthetic character of the City.”SDMC § 142.1201. That is all our review requires to prove a significant interest. See Ackerley v. Krochalis, 108 F.3d 1095, 1099-1100 (9th Cir.1997).

To further these interests, the City has calibrated its size and height restrictions for “ground signs,” which include billboards, to the width of the adjacent public rights-of-way and the speed limit. See Table 142-12H, SDMC § 142.1240. Display square footage, for example, varies from 32 square feet for the narrowest rights-of-way with the lowest speed limits, to 300 square feet for freeway-oriented signs. See Table 142-12H, § 142.1240. We find that these size and height restrictions are not substantially broader than necessary to protect the city's interests in traffic safety and aesthetics, and directly advance the city's interests. See Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. at 808

& n. 27, 104 S.Ct. 2118; see also Prime Media I, 398 F.3d at 822 (declining to require government to justify how it calculated size and height restrictions). Further, because these restrictions leave open alternative channels of communication—indeed they stop short of banning all billboards—we hold that they do not foreclose any alternative avenues of communication. See Metromedia, 453 U.S. at 501, 101 S.Ct. 2882.

We therefore uphold San Diego's size and height restrictions on billboards as valid, content-neutral, time, place and manner restrictions.

IV. The Off-Site Sign Ban

We determined in Part II, supra, that our ability to grant relief in this case hinged on the possibility that we would invalidate both the off-site sign ban and the size and height restrictions. We have now decided this latter set of restrictions is constitutional, and validly prohibits the construction of the proposed billboards. Therefore, even a decision enjoining the off-site ban would not redress the injury Get Outdoors II suffered due to the denial of its permits. See Covenant Media, 493 F.3d at 429-31; Prime Media, 485 F.3d at 349-50; KH Outdoor, 482 F.3d at 1305; Advantage Media, 456 F.3d at 799; Harp, 9 F.3d at 1292. Nor would nominal damages be appropriate under these circumstances. See County of Riverside, 337 F.3d at 1115.

Accordingly, we do not reach Get Outdoors II's claim regarding the off-site ban.

V. Prior Restraint

[19] A person subject to a licensing ordinance may make a facial, First Amendment attack on that ordinance without ever applying for a permit because the threat of the prior restraint itself constitutes an actual injury. See City of Lakewood v. Plain Dealer Publishing Co., 486 U.S. 750, 759, 108 S.Ct. 2138, 100 L.Ed.2d 771 (1988). The Supreme Court has espoused two definitions of a prior restraint: an ordinance that vests unbridled discretion in the licensor, see id.; Forsyth County v. Nationalist Movement, 505 U.S. 123, 112 S.Ct. 2395, 120 L.Ed.2d 101 (1992), or an ordinance that does not impose adequate time limits on the relevant public officials, see FW/PBS, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 493

U.S. 215, 110 S.Ct. 596, 107 L.Ed.2d 603 (1990). Get Outdoors II alleges that the sign ordinance in this case is invalid for both reasons, but we must first evaluate its standing to bring this part of its challenge.

[20][21] As we previously discussed, no claim is exempt from Article III standing *895 requirements of injury in fact, causation and redressability. Prior restraint claims are unique, however, because the threat of the prior restraint itself constitutes the injury-in-fact. Thus, a party who is subject to “a licensing statute allegedly vest[ing] unbridled discretion in a government official over whether to permit or deny expressive activity” may challenge the statute without subjecting itself to the application process. City of Lakewood v. Plain Dealer Publishing Co., 486 U.S. 750, 755-56, 108 S.Ct. 2138, 100 L.Ed.2d 771 (1988). In other words, “[o]ne who might have had a license for the asking” may challenge the licensing scheme as a prior restraint. Thornhill v. Alabama, 310 U.S. 88, 97, 60 S.Ct. 736, 84 L.Ed. 1093 (1940).

[22] Get Outdoors II challenges the discretionary provisions contained in the City's sign ordinance and the absence of a time-limit provision. However, Get Outdoors II's applications to erect billboard structures were denied on grounds that are constitutionally valid, and neither its filings nor its actions in this case have evinced any intent to file permit applications that comply with these requirements. Thus, Get Outdoors II cannot show that it would ever be genuinely threatened by an unconstitutional prior restraint in this case. In other words, Get Outdoors II is not a plaintiff who “might have had a license for the asking.” No change in the permit procedure would result in the approval of the permits it requests. See KH Outdoor, 482 F.3d at 1304-05 (dismissing all claims for lack of redressability). Further, because its permits were independently invalid, we cannot say there it suffered any injury compensable by even nominal damages. See County of Riverside, 337 F.3d at 1115. We therefore hold that Get Outdoors II lacks standing to challenge the permitting process.<sup>FN6</sup>

<sup>FN6</sup> The district court correctly acknowledged the absence of injury in fact for the procedural safeguards provision, noting that “the lack of injury in fact undermines Plaintiff's standing to bring this overbreadth claim." Get Outdoors II, LLC v. City of San Diego, 381 F.Supp.2d 1250, 1269 (S.D.Cal.2005) (citing 4805 Convoy, Inc., 183 F.3d at 1112). It resolved this claim based on mootness "assuming, arguendo that Plaintiff has standing to assert its claim[.]" Id. at 1270. We agree that this mootness determination is an alternate basis for affirming summary judgment regarding the challenge to the lack of procedural safeguards.

In summary, we have found that Get Outdoors II's claims fail on the basis of standing, mootness and the merits. Accordingly, the district court's order granting summary judgment is

AFFIRMED.

C.A.9 (Cal.),2007.

Get Outdoors II, LLC v. City of San Diego, Cal.
506 F.3d 886, 07 Cal. Daily Op. Serv. 12,720, 2007
Daily Journal D.A.R. 16,448

END OF DOCUMENT