PLANNERS AROUND THE WORLD,
WE NEED YOU!

Planning Livable Communities for ALL Ages

An international coalition of planners, led by the APA and AARP, has launched a conversation on how to best advance planning for ALL ages. The worldwide proportion of residents aged 60-plus will increase from 12% to 22% between 2015-2050. Planning professionals envision the form and future growth of communities and are therefore a lynchpin to making communities livable for rapidly aging populations.

We ask ALL PLANNERS (e.g., city/town/regional/transportation) to participate in an initial international research effort aimed at learning how best to engage planners to incorporate planning livable communities for ALL ages in their ongoing planning work.

Please take 5-10 minutes to complete this survey,
accessed through either partner organization:

www.aarp.org/plannerengagementsurvey/
www.planning.org/plannerengagementsurvey/

We also created a relevant session for World Town Planning Day. The webinar presents an international approach to planning livable communities for ALL ages, shares lessons from research among planners and aging professionals—in the U.S. and overseas, and offers opportunities for planners around the world to learn from and contribute to this important conversation.

www.planning.org/international/worldtown/#1

The survey and webinar will be open through November 2017.

For more information, please contact:
Stephanie K. Firestone, Senior Strategic Policy Advisor, AARP: sfirestone@aarp.org; @firekrone
Tim Van Epp, Chair, International Division, American Planning Association: tvenepp@gmail.com